

Removing organization members from a team

People with owner or team maintainer permissions can remove team members from a team. This may be necessary if a person no longer needs access to a repository the team grants, or if a person is no longer focused on a team's projects.

Warning:

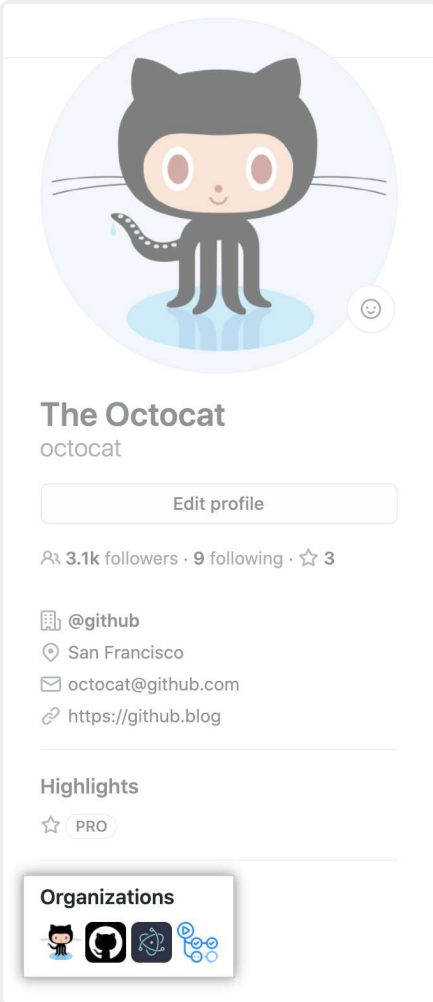

- If you remove a person's access to a private repository, any of their forks of that private repository are deleted. Local clones of the private repository are retained. If a team's access to a private repository is revoked or a team with access to a private repository is deleted, and team members do not have access to the repository through another team, private forks of the repository will be deleted.
- You are responsible for ensuring that people who have lost access to a repository delete any confidential information or intellectual property.
- People with admin permissions to a private or internal repository can disallow forking of that repository, and organization owners can disallow forking of any private or internal repository in an organization. For more information, see "Managing the forking policy for your organization" and "Managing the forking policy for your repository."

In the top right corner of GitHub, click your profile photo, then click Your profile.

On the left side of your profile page, under "Organizations", click the icon for your organization.

The Octocat
octocat

Edit profile

👤 3.1k followers · 9 following · ☆ 3

📁 @github
📍 San Francisco
✉ octocat@github.com
🔗 <https://github.blog>

Highlights

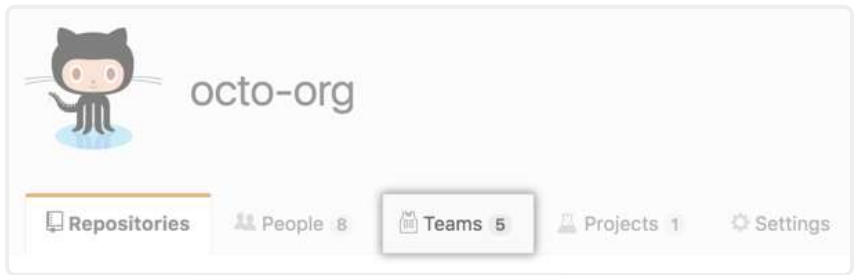

☆ PRO

Organizations

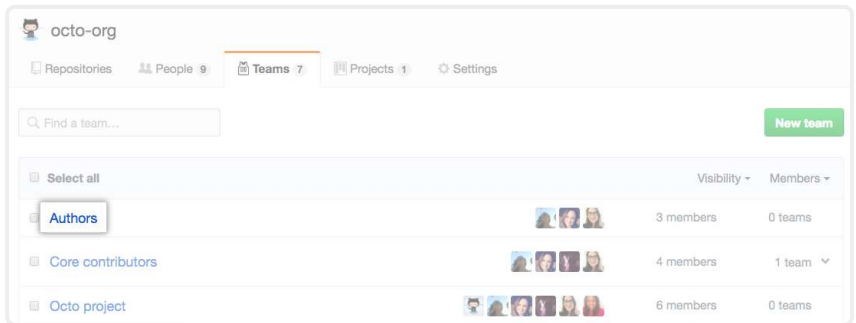

The image shows a GitHub profile card for 'The Octocat' (octocat). It features the Octocat avatar, a bio, a follow button, follower/following counts, contact information, highlights, and an organizations section with icons for GitHub, Docker, and others.

Under your organization name, click 🏢 Teams.

On the Teams tab, click the name of the team.

Select the person or people you'd like to remove.

Above the list of team members, use the drop-down menu and click Remove from team.

